Research Participants Needed at Caltech

The Caltech Autism and Asperger’s Syndrome Research Program studies the cognitive and emotional aspects of adults with Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD). These studies should help us to better understand the differences in social behavior that are often seen in people with autism or Asperger syndrome.

Studies may involve surveys, behavioral tests, eye-tracking and/or MRI. Read the criteria below to see if you might qualify for participation.

Basic Criteria for Participants

You must be at least 16 years old.

You must be fluent in English.

You must have a diagnosis of autism or Asperger’s syndrome.

You have not been diagnosed with a neurological or psychiatric condition (for example epilepsy, traumatic brain injury, major depression, etc …).

You must live in Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Bernadino, Riverside, Orange or San Diego County.

Research is conducted in Pasadena, CA at the California Institute of Technology. We pay all participants for their time in the studies, and we may assist with travel expenses. Recruitment is ongoing, and scheduling is very flexible. Participants will be paid $20 to $50 per hour depending on the type of study.
