CAN REACH TRAINING PROGRAM

PARENT COMMUNITY LECTURE

Working Together to Meet Individual Needs: Creating a Village to Support People with ASD

Ilene Schwartz, Ph.D.
Professor of Special Education
University of Washington

Dr. Schwartz is an expert in developing, evaluating, and disseminating school and community-based interventions for young children with autism. A focus of her research is sustainability and acceptability of these interventions. She is also interested in methods of training and coaching to ensure that teachers, behavior analysts, and related staff members are well-prepared to provide effective, inclusive, educational programming to all students with autism and related disorders.
